Soldiers Point Marina Gains Significant International Environmental Accreditation

After a lengthy accreditation process, Soldiers Point Marina has been recognised as the first marina on the east coast of Australia to achieve Level 4 International Organisation for Standardisation (ISO) 14001 Clean Marinas Program status.

Level 4 builds on levels 1 – 3 of the Clean Marinas program established in 2002 by the Marina Industries Association (MIA) with the objective of protecting the nation's coastal and in-land waterways.

ISO governs the International Standards for Business, Government and Society. This international environmental accreditation is another major commitment by Soldiers Point Marina to be the very best in environmental practices.

Soldiers Point Marine Centre Under New Management

Congratulations and welcome to Greg and Jenny Busch from Soldiers Point who have taken over ownership of Soldiers Point Marine Centre. Many of you will already know Jenny who has been working in the office now at SPMC for the last 2 years.

Jenny hails from a marine background having started off her working life in the hustle and bustle shipyard of Cockatoo Dockyard down on Sydney Harbour. Jenny is also involved with many of the local sporting clubs in Port Stephens from managing junior rugby teams through to the local junior sailing club where she is an active officer.

Greg, who started out his career in marine electronics, has been involved in the marine industry for the last thirty years. His working life has taken him from prawn trawling along the African coast of Mozambique through to sailing the world's oceans and running some of the giant underwater machines used in the offshore industry.

Together, Greg and Jenny, along with their family, are bringing the local touch back to SPMC and with it recognition of the responsibilities entrusted in them by their customers when carrying out work on what is to some, their most prized possession.

Along with the mainstay of slipway work and mechanical services, they will also be offering electrical and electronic repairs and service.

Come down and say g'day to Greg, Jenny, and the team.
